

Biography - Philip Santore

Philip Santore is the Senior Principal of DVS.

Mr. Santore, with DVS since 1998, provides specialized security technology assessment, recommendations, and engineering strategies for projects. He began his career in the security industry in 1979 and has held numerous technical and managerial positions throughout his years in the industry. His extensive background in electronic security countermeasures development is rooted in the context of practical applications, as a result of significant years of professional contracting management, equipment procurement, and installation oversight.

These experiences result in the balance of threat mitigation technologies versus cost to procure, install, maintain, and operate. His expertise serves to facilitate the interaction of security, facility, and law enforcement personnel with security components and systems to affect an intuitive and efficient man/machine interface. Most recently, Mr. Santore has guided DVS into the effective addressing of Chemical, Biological, Radiological, and Nuclear (CBRN) threats including areas of criteria development, mitigation strategies, and deployment plans.
